Rules Summary for the Grognards

Download Rules Summary.

Characters

- Three Abilities, 3d6
 - Brawn (constitution & strength)
 - Finesse (charisma & dexterity)
 - Intellect (intelligence & wisdom)
- Hit Protection (HP)
 - 1d6
 - HP quickly restored
 - Some equipment increases max HP
- Classless, role determined by Abilities and equipment carried
- No levels or XP, in-world improvement through Scars and adventuring

Actions

- Player directed through narrative and description
- Ability Saves, only if risky or opposed

Saves

- Roll d20 less than Ability score
- No modifiers
- Fictional positioning (Advantage or Disadvantage) influences both likelihood of success and impact of outcome
- Roll of 1 always succeeds, 20 always fails

Equipment

- 12 inventory slots
- Most items 1 slot, bulky items 2
- Max inventory, HP 0

Combat

- Attacks always hit, just roll damage
 - Damage by weapon
 - Armour reduces damage
- Zones: hand, close, near, far, distant
- Heroic Deeds: ad-hoc combat manoeuvres instead of damage
- Sundered shield: blocks damage

Damage

- Damage taken to HP
 - After HP 0, damage to Brawn
 - HP reduced to exactly 0, roll Scar
 - Brawn damage, Save to avoid Critical Injury
- Brawn reduced to 0, character dies

Healing

- HP restored after encounter
- Ability loss more serious injury

Magic

- Spells are items carried in inventory
- Casting adds Fatigue to inventory
- Miscasting adds Corruption

Corruption

- Exposure to sorcery and ancient horrors risks Corruption
- Accumulation of Corruption causes unpredictable mutations

Design Principles

New School Revolution

NSR games have:

- A GM
- A Weird Setting
- A Living World

are:

- Rules Lite
- Deadly

and focus on:

- Emergent Narrative
- External Interaction
- Exploration

Design

Players should know: they start as nothing.

The game is about achievement, that is, who you become through great trials and dangers.

Your character sheet lays out your character's basic stats and what they have, but it's simply a window into their narrative. Your character sheet tells you how things are, not what you ought to do. It contains no answers.

Throughout the play, your character doesn't get "better" mechanically. There are no tiers or levels or lists of feats or moves or powers for players to look through between games, planning and maximizing their next several levels of play.

Adventurers become tougher with Scars, which only happen during play. Adventurers get valuable treasure and unique magical items during play to extend their capabilities. The game happens at the table.

The "play" is the thing. Play to find out.

Principles for Game Masters

GMs abide by these general principles.

Information

- Provide helpful information about the game world as the characters explore it.
- Players do not need to roll dice to learn about their circumstances.
- Be helpful and direct with your answers to their questions.
- Respond honestly, describe consistently, and always let them know they can keep asking questions.

Difficulty

- Default to context and realism rather than numbers and mechanics.
- If something the players want to do is sincerely impossible, no dice roll will allow them to do it.
- Is what the player describes and how they leverage the situation sensible? Let it happen.
- Ability Saves cover many uncertain situations and are often all that is necessary for risky actions.

Preparation

- The game world is organic, malleable, and random. It intuitively and makes sharp turns.
- Use random tables and generators to develop situations, not static stories or plots.
- NPCs remember what the PCs say and do and how they affect the world.
- NPCs don't want to die. Infuse their self-interest and will to live into every personality.

Narrative Focus

- Emergent experience of play is what matters, not math or character abilities. Give the players weapon trainers and personal quests to facilitate improvement and specialization.
- Pay attention to the needs and wants of the players, then put realistic opportunities in their path.
- A dagger to your throat will kill you, regardless of your expensive armour and special training.

Danger

- The game world produces a real risk of pain and death for the player characters.
- Telegraph danger to players when it is present. The more dangerous, the more apparent.
- Put traps in plain sight and let the players take time to figure out a solution.
- Give players opportunities to solve problems and interact with the world.

Choice

- Give players a solid choice to force outcomes when the narrative lulls.
- Use binary "so, A or B?" responses when their intentions are vague.
- Work together with this conversational progress to keep the game moving.
- Ensure that the player character's actions leave their mark on the game world.

Principles for Players

Players abide by these general principles.

Agency

- Ability scores and related saves do not define your character. They are tools.
- Don't only ask what your character would do; ask what you would do, too.
- Be creative with your intuition, items, and connections.

Teamwork

- Seek consensus from the other players before barreling forward.
- Stay on the same page about goals and limits, respecting each other and accomplishing more as a group than alone.

Exploration

- Asking questions and listening to detail is more valuable than any stats, items, or skills you have.
- Take the GM's description without suspicion, but never hesitate to clarify or seek more information.
- There is no single correct way forward.

Talking

- Treat NPCs as if they were real people, and rely on your curiosity to safely gain information and solve problems.
- You'll find that most people are interesting and will want to talk things through before getting violent.

Caution

- Fighting is a choice and rarely a wise one; consider whether violence is the best way to achieve your goals.
- Try to stack the odds in your favour and retreat when things seem unfavourable.

Planning

- Think of ways to avoid your obstacles through reconnaissance, subtlety, and fact-finding.
- Do some research and ask around about your objectives.

Ambition

- Set goals and use your resources to take steps forward.
- Expect nothing. Earn your reputation.
- Keep things moving forward and play to see what happens.

Making Your Character

To create your character, download a character sheet and follow these steps, or randomly generate a character.

1: Name and Traits

Choose your character's name and appearance or roll on the Names and Traits tables.

2: Abilities

Your character has three Abilities scores that measure their general capabilities.

- Brawn: fortitude, strength, vigour
- Finesse: agility, charm, speed
- Intellect: intelligence, perception, willpower

For each Ability, in order, roll 3d6. If you like, you can then swap any two Ability scores.

3: Hit Protection

Hit Protection (HP) measures your character's capability to avoid severe damage.

- HP is quickly replenished.
- Damage first reduces your HP.
- After your HP is zero, damage reduces your Brawn.
- Damage to Brawn represents a more severe injury.

Roll 1d6 for your character's HP.

4: Corruption

Players dabbling in sorcery slide down a slippery slope. Magic is volatile and warps its practitioners. Some players may want to avoid these corruptions, while others seek it actively.

Your player starts with zero corruption.

5: Classless

Many games have fixed character classes or roles you must choose to determine your character's capabilities. However, you are all dungeoneers, explorers, and ne'er-do-wells seeking adventure and glory in this game. Your character can strap on plate armour and swing a battleaxe as readily as they can cast a spell, pick a lock, sneak in the shadows, or traverse a wilderness. The equipment they carry, Ability scores, and imagination determine your character's capabilities.

If you'd like to be a warrior, put your highest Ability score in Brawn and arm yourself with the best weapons and armour that you can acquire. If you prefer a stealthy rogue, make sure you have lock picks and high Finesse. Spell grimoires and a high Intellect will help you along the path of sorcerous arts. Or perhaps a little of all three?

Alternately, if you would prefer to play a specific character archetype, see the optional Archetypes table.

6: Background

Either choose or roll your character's occupation before becoming an adventurer on the Backgrounds table.

Your character's background does not have any particular game effect. The background might suggest something your character knows or a possible contact.

7: Starting Equipment

Characters have a total of twelve inventory slots. Most items take up one slot, and small items can sometimes be bundled together into a single slot. Bulky items take up two slots and are typically two-handed, heavy, or awkward to carry.

A character with a full inventory (filling all slots) has their HP reduced to zero while encumbered. You cannot carry more items than your inventory allows and must drop excess items.

All PCs begin with:

- Rations (3 days)
- Waterskin (3 days)
- 2d6 x10 coins

Roll on the Starting Equipment tables to determine what additional equipment, armour, and weapon your character owns.

See Equipment for details on the items such as armour value, damage die, and inventory slot attributes.

Names

Choose a name or roll d68 (d6 for the tens digit and d8 for the ones digit).

Roll	Name	Roll	Name
11	Aerg	41	Kutz
12	Agn	42	Kvetin
13	Arvant	43	Lygan

36	Keftar	66	Vrakh
37	Klort	67	Vresi
38	Kratar	68	Wemut

Surname

Surnames are optional and never based on a hereditary family lineage but rather the given name of a parent.

For your character's surname, roll to determine your parent's name. Then, for a female character, append "-sdottír" to your parent's name, or, for a male character, append "-sson". Alternately, use "daughter of" or "son of".

For example, Svind's parent is Haerü, hence Svind Haerüsson or Svind, son of Haerü.

Playing the Game

The core of this game is a conversation between players and GM. The GM describes the players' current situation. The players then ask questions and tell what their characters do. The GM explains the results of the players' actions; the players react and describe more activities, and so on.

Suppose the outcome of your character's actions is not immediately apparent, or the activity is risky. In that case, the GM may ask that you roll dice to determine the results.

The GM will answer your questions and will always respect your freedom of choice. The GM will certainly provide challenges, obstacles, and situations to solve and overcome. Still, the game is not a story narrated by the GM. Instead, it's an interactive fiction built upon your and your fellow players' decisions.

Actions and Ability Saves

Actions are anything your character does when interacting with the world, whether it's haggling with an innkeeper, avoiding a trap, crossing swords with a villain, or invoking the powers of an elder god.

Your description of what your character is doing determines the outcome of their Actions. Your character's Actions always succeed as you describe unless there's potential for risk or consequence to the narrative.

Ability Saves

When your character's Action is risky or could change the narrative, your GM may call for an Ability Save. Your GM tells you what Ability is relevant, and you then roll d20. If the result is less than your character's Ability score, the Action succeeds. Otherwise, it fails.

Regardless of Ability scores, a roll of 1 always succeeds, while a 20 always fails.

Advantage and Disadvantage

Suppose careful preparation reduces the risk of an Action or other situational factors. In that case, your GM may grant an Advantage on your Ability Save. If so, you roll an extra d20 and take the lowest single result of the two dice.

If an Action has multiple advantages, it may no longer be considered risky and therefore might not require an Ability Save.

Conversely, suppose the Action is made riskier by great haste, lack of appropriate gear, or other factors. In that case, your GM may require a Disadvantage on your Ability Save. If so, you roll an extra d20 and take the highest single result of the two dice.

Ability Saves with both Advantages and Disadvantages are rolled as usual with one d20.

Impact and Fictional Positioning

With Advantage, your dice roll certainly has an increased chance of success. Still, the outcome of your successful action might also be improved. An advantageous success has more impact on the narrative than a success for the same action made without any advantageous preparation. Similarly, a failure on an advantageous action could be mitigated with lessened consequences.

Conversely, with Disadvantage, your dice roll is, of course, less likely to succeed. Still, even with a successful dice roll, the outcome would have less than ideal results. A failed roll might result in even harsher consequences.

When you take any risky action, the GM determines various degrees of impact on potential outcomes before rolling the dice. Advantageous preparation will improve the effectiveness of your actions on the narrative. Disadvantageous preparation will reduce their effectiveness. Without either advantage or disadvantage, the outcome will be somewhere in the middle.

For example, your party needs to cross a bridge (the only one for miles) that's controlled by a bellicose warlord. You are granted an audience and make your petition. The GM rules a Finesse Save dictates the warlord's decision. If you succeed, you cross, but pay a small tax, like everyone else. On a failure, the bridge is closed, head upstream ten miles to another crossing.

Now, let's assume that you first asked around and learned this warlord is amenable to bribery, so you present him with a fine gift. The GM rules that your Finesse Save has an Advantage, so it's certainly more likely to succeed. However, more than just improving your chances, the GM determines that your advantageous preparation also means the warlord will waive his usual bridge tax. A failure isn't absolute either with the advantageous gift. There's no need to go 10 miles upstream to another crossing. The warlord just needs you to provide him with a small favour before you can cross.

Now consider the disadvantageous situation. It turns out that you are from an enemy nation of this warlord, so the GM rules your petition to cross the bridge has a Disadvantage. Your chances of success are less, but you'll try your luck with no further preparation. With the decreased impact, however, the GM determines that the warlord will let you cross but gouges you with three times his usual tax on a successful roll. On a failed roll, he'll try and arrest you.

Actions have a mechanical component of rolling dice to determine success. Still, the outcomes can be made better or worse by your fictional positioning in the narrative.

Opposed Actions

If opponents are attempting the same Action, the Action is Opposed. For example, your character is holding a door closed while an enemy is forcing it open. To determine an outcome, both opponents make Ability Saves, and the lowest roll succeeds.

Aiding and Interfering

Player characters can come to the Aid of their companions to help make an Action succeed. Everyone involved makes separate Abilities Saves, and the best result decides the outcome. All characters aiding with the Action potentially share any adverse consequences of a failed Save.

Conversely, player characters can Interfere with another player character's actions and prevent them from succeeding. Everyone involved makes an Ability Save, and the worst roll decides the outcome.

Time and Distance

Time and distance are abstracted and flexible, depending on the current narrative.

Time

The game measures time in three durations: Round, Turn, and Watch.

- Round is the time scale for combat. Each Round is less than a minute.
- Turn is the time scale for exploration. Each Turn is around 10 minutes, enough time to explore a room and perform an Action or two.
- Watch is the time scale used when travelling. Each Watch is 36 Turns or about 6 hours.

Distance

The game measures distance with five zones or ranges: Hand, Close, Near, Far, and Distant. Your character can move between adjacent zones in one Round.

- Hand means the opponents are in physical contact, grappling.
- Close means that the opponents are within striking distance of hand-held melee weapons.
- Near means that the opponents are out of striking distance for hand-held melee weapons but within range of weapons with a long reach quality, such as polearms, thrown weapons, ranged weapons, and spells.

- Far means the opponents are even further apart, out of range for melee and thrown weapons, but within range of ranged weapons and spells.
- Distant means the opponents are within sight but entirely out of reach of any weapon or spell.

Combat

In each Round of combat, your character can move and take one Action or forgo taking an Action and move twice.

At the beginning of each round, you declare what your character is doing before dice are rolled.

The GM will indicate the likely actions that your opponents will take.

Initiative

All players first declare their actions for the round and then determine who goes first as follows:

- If your opponent is surprised, your character acts before them.
- If an opponent is not surprised, make a Finesse Save to go before them.

Declare your actions and roll a Finesse Save at the beginning of each new Round to see who goes first. The lowest roll goes first, and then in order of increasing results. Characters who failed the Finesse Save go after their opponents. Continue doing so until the encounter is over. The subsequent roll may result in one side taking two consecutive actions.

Attacks

Attacks always hit. The attacker rolls their weapon's damage die and deals that much damage to their opponent's HP.

In situations that make an attack either more or less deadly, the GM may decide that your character's damage is Enhanced or Impaired.

- If an attack is Enhanced, such as attacking an unaware target, roll your damage die and an extra d12. Take the single highest result.
- If the attack is Impaired, such as firing through cover, roll your damage die and an extra d4. Take the single lowest result.

Armour

Before dealing damage to HP, subtract the target's Armor rating from the result of your damage roll. Some weapons and types of attacks with the piercing quality reduce a target's armour rating for determining damage. Some attacks, such as falling or burning, ignore armour entirely.

Multiple Attacks

If multiple allies in the same zone attack the same opponent, roll each damage separately, but deal the single highest result.

Dual Weapons

If your character wields two weapons, roll damage for each, but deal the single highest result.

Shields

Shields provide protection against damage but can be used in other ways.

Shield Bash

A shield can be used as a dual weapon in the offhand, rolling damage as an improvised weapon. Installation of shield spikes or similar equipment may increase the damage.

A shield used to bash an opponent provides no armour protection.

Sundered Shields

If your character has a shield equipped, you could choose to ignore all damage in an attack by sundering their shield. A sundered shield is splintered and destroyed.

Shield Walls

Allies equipped with shields can form a defensive wall anchored on a leader. This shield wall provides an additional +1 armour as well as cover. Advancing into melee or making a fighting withdrawal as a unit may require a Finesse Save to maintain the shield wall.

The shield wall is broken if the leader is incapacitated or any members either fail their Finesse Save while moving as a unit, shield bash, or sunder a shield.

Characters equipped with bucklers cannot form a shield wall.

Blast

Attacks with a blast quality affect all targets in a zone, rolling damage separately for each. Blast refers to anything from explosions to massive cleaving onslaughts to the impact of siege engine projectiles. If unsure how many targets can be affected in the zone, roll the related damage die for the number.

Heroic Deeds

Heroic Deeds are ad-hoc manoeuvres your character might attempt during combat. Examples include:

- Disarming an opponent
- Swinging from a chandelier to knock a target over
- Leaping onto the back of a giant
- Shouting a ferocious battle cry to unnerve the enemy

Any deed you can describe within the fiction of the narrative is possible, per GM ruling.

Resolving Deeds

You declare your character's deed and do not roll damage. Instead, make an Ability Save that determines whether your character accomplishes the heroic deed.

Deeds are crucial to surviving battle. Standing toe-to-toe with an enemy and trading blows might work, but you'll be taking a considerable risk. Remember that all attacks hit, and you always roll damage—this applies to your opponent's attacks as well. Coordinate your party's actions and deeds. Fight dirty. Don't give an opponent a chance to defeat you. With a crafty deed, the fight might be over before it starts.

Critical Deed Saves

If you roll a one or a twenty on your Ability Save for completing a deed, see the following outcomes.

- On a one, the deed succeeds spectacularly without any chance for your opponent to avoid it, and you also roll weapon damage, if applicable.
- On a twenty, the deed fails miserably, and the intended result happens to your character instead. You might be able to make an Ability Save to avoid the deed's effect.

Retreat

Running away from a dire situation requires a Finesse Save, as well as a safe destination to run to.

Warband

Large groups of similar combatants fighting together are treated as a single unit.

- When a Warband takes a Critical Injury, it is routed. When it reaches zero Brawn, it is destroyed.
- Attacks against Warbands by individuals are impaired unless they deal blast damage.
- Attacks against individuals by Warbands are enhanced and always deal blast damage.

Damage, Death, and Debilities

Damage first reduces your character's HP. After HP is zero, the excess damage then reduces your Brawn Ability.

Losing HP represents general wear and tear that's quickly restored and not life-threatening. Damage to Brawn means more grievous harm.

As long as HP is zero, damage is taken to Brawn.

Ability Loss

After taking damage to Brawn, roll a Brawn Save. If your Save fails, the damage is a Critical Injury. Your character adds a Fatigue debility to their inventory and is unconscious and out of the fight until revived.

Some creatures, poisons, diseases, or spells can potentially damage your character's other Abilities.

Damage to any Ability score is potentially grave.

- If Brawn is reduced to zero, your character dies. It's time to roll a new character.
- If Finesse is reduced to zero, your character can no longer make use of their limbs.
- If Intellect is reduced to zero, your character is stricken with madness. The GM might determine their actions until the character's Intellect is restored.

Scars

When damage to your character reduces their HP to exactly zero, they are sometimes changed irrevocably. See the Scars table for details.

Deprivation and Fatigue

A character deprived of a crucial need (such as food or rest) cannot heal HP or Ability scores. Anyone deprived for more than a day adds Fatigue to their inventory, one for each day. Each Fatigue occupies one slot and lasts until they can recuperate (such as a whole night's rest in a safe spot).

Characters can also gain Fatigue by:

- casting spells,
- suffering critical injuries,
- or through events in the narrative.

Healing

Resting for a few moments after an encounter restores all lost HP. Ability loss and other serious ailments are more difficult to heal. You can generally recover lost Ability points with a week or two of rest under a healer's care or other sources of appropriate expertise. Some of these services are free, while magical or more expedient means of recovery may come at a cost.

Scars

When damage reduces your character's HP to exactly zero, they are sometimes changed irrevocably.

Based on the damage suffered in the attack, see the following table for the resulting Scar.

Damage	Scar
1	Lasting Scar: Roll d6 1: Ear, 2: Eye, 3: Chest, 4: Hands, 5: Legs, 6: Neck. Roll d6. If the result is higher than your maximum HP, take the new result.
2	Rattling Blow: You're disoriented and shaken. Take one round to refocus. Roll d6. If the result is higher than your maximum HP, take the new result.
3	Walloped: You're sent flying and land flat on your face, winded. Add one Fatigue to your inventory. Then, roll d6 and add the result to your maximum HP.
4	Broken Limb: Roll d6 1-2: Arm, 3-4: Leg, 5: Rib, 6: Skull. Once fully healed, roll 2d6. If the total is higher than your maximum HP, take the new result.
5	Diseased: You're afflicted with a repulsive, uncomfortable infection. When you recover, roll 2d6. If the total is higher than your maximum HP, take the new result.
6	Reorienting Head Wound: Roll d6 1-2: Brawn, 3-4: Finesse, 5-6: Intellect. Roll 3d6. If the result is higher than your current Ability score, take the new result.
7	Hamstrung: You can barely move until you heal and rest.
8	Deafened: You cannot hear anything until you heal and rest.
9	Warped: An unknown part of your psyche is knocked loose. Increase your Corruption level by one. Roll d6 Make an Ability Save for: 1-2: Brawn, 3-4: Finesse, or 5-6: Intellect. If you succeed, roll 3d6. If the result is higher than your current Ability score, take the new result. Otherwise, roll a Corruption .
10	Sundered: Roll 1d6 1: Arm, 2: Leg, 3-4 Hand, 5-6 foot. The appendage is torn off, crippled, or useless. Make an Intellect save. If you succeed, increase your maximum Intellect by 1d4 (to a maximum of 18).
11	Mortal Wound: You are knocked unconscious and out of the action. Add a Fatigue to your inventory. You'll die soon unless revived. Upon recovery, roll 2d6. Take the new result as your maximum HP.
12	Doomed: Somehow, you survived the blow. If your next Brawn Save to avoid Critical Injury is a failure, you die instantly and horribly. If you pass, roll 3d6. If the total is higher than your maximum HP, take the new result.
13+	Outsider You should have have died, but someone or something intervened. Roll d6 1-2: gain a Demon Aspect , 3-4: gain a Serpent Aspect , 5-6: gain an Old Ones Aspect .

Equipment

All equipment that your character carries must be listed in an inventory slot. Each character has twelve inventory slots.

Most items require one slot. Bulky items require two. Small items may sometimes be stacked together in a single slot.

Prices in the following equipment lists are in silver coins. Barter is typically the means of exchange in small, remote settlements. Coinage is used in larger towns. The gold coin is known but exceedingly rare—fit for kings and dragons.

The first 200 coins carried do not take up an inventory slot. Each additional 200 coins requires one inventory slot. For example, if you are carrying 1000 coins, you'll need four inventory slots.

Tags describe your equipment's general qualities and functions, such as bulky inventory or number of uses. See the following Tags and Equipment lists for details.

Gear

Equipment Tags

Tags describe and differentiate equipment. Some tags are purely descriptive, while others specify attributes and effects for the character using the equipment.

Tag	Description
Applied	Works when applied to a person or something they eat or drink.
Awkward	Unwieldy and requires sufficient space to use.
Dangerous	It's easy to get in trouble with it. If you interact with it without proper precautions, the GM may freely invoke the consequences of your foolish actions.
Requires	Usable only with a specific minimum Ability.
Slow	Takes a minute or two to use.
Touch	Used by touching it to the target's skin.
Two-handed	It takes two hands to use it effectively.
Worn	To use it, you have to be wearing it.
n Uses	It can only be used n times.

Armour

Armour decreases damage from weapon attacks and many other forms of damage. Your character can strap on whatever armour you see fit to take advantage of its protective qualities.

Armour Tags

Some armour tags are purely descriptive, while others specify attributes and effects for the character using the armour.

Tag	Description
n Armour	Armour rating. Reduce n from damage.
+n Armour	Adds n to your Armour rating.
+n HP	Adds n to your maximum HP.
Bulky	Requires 2 inventory slots.
Clumsy	It's cumbersome or noisy to move around while wearing. Finesse Saves have a Disadvantage.
Cover	Provides cover against ranged attacks for Impaired damage.
Fitted	Tailored to fit the owner perfectly and removes the Clumsy tag. Other wearers would not receive this benefit. Price increases threefold.
Requires	Usable with a specific minimum Ability score.

Armour Types

Type	Coin	Tags
Helmet	40	+1 HP, worn
Buckler	20	+1 armour (+0 versus ranged attacks), offhand
Shield	40	+1 armour, offhand, bulky
Tower Shield	100	+1 armour, cover, offhand, awkward, clumsy, bulky
Gambeson	20	+1 HP, worn
Leather, Cuirass	100	1 armour, worn, bulky
Brigandine, Scale, Ring	400	2 armour, worn, clumsy, bulky
Chainmail	1200	2 armour, worn, bulky
Platemail	4000	3 armour, worn, clumsy, bulky
Plate	8000	4 armour, worn, clumsy, requires 9+ Brawn, bulky

Weapons

The damage your character inflicts on opponents is determined by the weapons they wield. Your character can use any weapon you see fit.

Weapon Tags

Some weapon tags are purely descriptive, while others specify attributes and effects for the character using the weapon.

Tag	Description
General
Awkward	Unwieldy and requires sufficient space to use.
Blast	Damages all targets in the zone.
Block	The weapon can be used to block attacks for +1 armour versus melee weapons (not ranged attacks) instead of attacking an opponent. The usage must be declared at the beginning of the round.
Bulky	Requires 2 inventory slots.
Forceful	It can knock an opponent back a pace, maybe even off their feet.
Hand	Can be used while in physical contact, grappling with an opponent.
Hand and a Half	Wielded in either your main hand or with both. If two damage dice are listed, the lower die applies when using one hand, the higher when using both hands.
Ignores Armour	The damage is not reduced by armour.
Main	It is wielded in your main hand.
Messy	It does damage in a particularly destructive way, ripping things apart.
Offhand	Wielded in either your main hand or as a second weapon in your offhand.
n Piercing	Ignores n armour rating. Hardened steel melee weapons add 1 piercing , and the price increases threefold.
Reach	The length of this weapon means that it may be used to attack from the second rank, over a large barricade, or from a balcony one floor above the ground.
Requires	Usable only with a specific minimum Ability score.

Reload	It must be reloaded or reset before attacking again.
Subdue	Weapon can be used to incapacitate an opponent rather than kill. Any Critical Injury stuns an opponent.
Thrown	You can throw it at nearby targets, up to one zone away.
Two-handed	Wielded with both hands.
Ranged
Close	It's useful for attacking something at arm's reach, plus a foot or two, in the same zone.
Near	It's useful for attacking if you can see the whites of their eyes, one zone away.
Far	It's useful for attacking something in shouting distance, two zones away.

Dragon-Powder Gunnes

Dragon-powder gunnes are expensive, exotic, and very loud. Wielded by the rich or the foolhardy, these strange weapons could very well hail from the infernal planes.

All dragon-powder gunnes have the following qualities:

- Unwieldy: All have the dangerous, two-handed, awkward, and bulky tags, unless otherwise noted.
- Inaccurate: Requires either an Intellect or a Finesse Save to hit a target before rolling damage.
- Perilous: A Critical Miss on the Save to hit a target results in a misfire. Roll on the Misfires table for the outcome.
- Armour-Piercing: All hand-held gunnes or bombs ignore 4 armour. Gunnes moved by two people or pack animals ignore all armour.
- Powerful: Enhanced attacks with gunnes roll an extra d20, impaired d6.
- Reloading: Most gunnes require one load of Powder Shot ammunition and can only be fired once before reloading. Preparing another shot takes 1d2 rounds unless otherwise noted and requires two hands. You can't reload a gunne if an enemy is within melee range.
- Noisy: Igniting dragon-powder has loud and explosive results. Lesser creatures might flee when hearing the shot. Anything more intelligent will notice and investigate.

Remember. If you can buy dragon-powder gunnes, so can everyone else.

Gunnes

Damage	Name	Coin	Notes
d6	Pepperbox	500	Can be fired up to six times before reloading. Requires six Powder Shots and six rounds to reload.
2d8	Dragon-powder Bomb	200	Thrown. One inventory slot. Destroyed on use. Blast damage.
d8	Pistolet	400	Takes up one inventory slot. It can be fired with either the main hand or in the offhand but requires both hands to reload.
d10	Arquebus	600
2d6	Dragon Lance	700	Requires two Shots per load. Deals full damage in melee range, or one die blast damage at range. It can function as a polearm weapon after firing.
2d8	Heavy Arquebus	800	Requires two shots per load. Deals full damage in melee range, or one die blast damage at range.
2d10	Basilisk Gun	900	Requires two people to move. Requires 1d2+1 rounds to reload and two Basilisk Shots.
6d8	Ribauldequin (Infernal Machine)	1800	Requires two people to move. Roll blast damage for every target in front of you, then divide damage by the total number of targets or three, whichever's higher (rounded up). Requires nine Basilisk Shots per load and 1d3+4 rounds to reload.
4d10	Cannon	3000	Can only be moved using a pack animal and wagon. Requires two people to operate and takes one round to aim. Deals 1d8 forceful damage to anyone standing directly behind it when it fires. Requires one Cannon Shot and 1d3+1 rounds to reload. Can attack distant targets.

Shot Ammunition

Type	Uses	Coin
Powder Shot	10	200
Basilisk Shot	10	300
Cannon Shot	1	150

Sorcery

The lands contain ancient, evil places filled with strange, corrupting magic and arcane relics.

Spell Grimoires

Grimoires contain a single spell and take up one slot in your inventory. Grimoires cannot be transcribed or created; instead, you recover them from ancient tombs, dungeons, and the forgotten ruins of the land.

To determine the spell contained within a grimoire, roll on the Spells table.

Grimoires sometimes display unusual properties or limitations, such as producing a foul or unearthly smell when opened, possessing an innate intelligence, or being legible only under moonlight.

Grimoires will attract those who seek sorcerous power, and it is considered dangerous to display them openly.

Casting Spells and Corruption

Any character can cast a spell by holding a grimoire in one hand and reading its contents aloud. They then add one Fatigue to their inventory and make an Intellect Save to avoid Corruption.

Failure on the Intellect Save increases your character's current Corruption level by one. You then roll d20 on the Corruptions table, adding your current Corruption level, to determine what, if any, Corruption manifests.

Scrolls

Scrolls are identical to Grimoires, however:

- They can be stacked in a single inventory slot.
- They do not add Fatigue when cast.
- They are destroyed upon use.

An Intellect Save is required to avoid Corruption upon reading a scroll.

Relics

Relics are magical items imbued with sorcerous powers. Using a relic does not add Fatigue. Relics sometimes have a limited number of uses and possibly a recharge condition.

An Intellect Save is required to avoid Corruption upon using a relic.

Spells

To determine a spell, roll 3d for the hundreds digit, d6 for the tens digit, and another d6 for the ones digit.

Roll	Spell	Description
111.	Acid Stomach	Anything you eat dissolves instantly and then can be vomited forth for 1d8 damage.
112.	Adhere	Covers an object in exceedingly sticky slime.
113.	Anchor	A durable wire sprouts from your arms, affixing itself to two points within 50 feet on each side.
114.	Animate Object	An object obeys your commands as best it can.
115.	Anthropomorphize	An animal gains either human intelligence or human appearance.
116.	Arcane Eye	You can see through a floating eyeball that flies around at your command.
121.	Astral Prison	Freezes an object in time and space within an impenetrable crystal shell.
122.	Attract	Two objects are strongly magnetically attracted to each other if they come within 25 feet.
123.	Babble	A creature must loudly and clearly repeat everything you think. It is otherwise mute.
124.	Bait Flower	A plant sprouts from the ground that emanates the smell of your choice.
125.	Beast Form	You and your possessions transform into a mundane animal.
126.	Befuddle	A creature of your choice cannot form new short-term memories.
131.	Bless	You or a target have Enhanced attacks.
132.	Bird Wings	Your arms turn into large bird wings.
133.	Body Swap	You switch bodies with a creature you touch. If one body dies, the other dies as well.
134.	Change Weather	You may alter the type of weather at will, but you do not otherwise direct it.
135.	Charm	A creature you can see treats you as a friend.
136.	Comprehend	You become fluent in all languages for a short while.
141.	Command	A target obeys a single three-word command that does not harm it.
142.	Cone of Foam	Dense foam sprays from your hand, coating the target.
143.	Control Plants	Nearby plants and trees obey you and gain the ability to move at a slow pace.

144.	Cure Wounds	Restore all HP to a creature you touch.
145.	Deafen	All nearby creatures are deafened.
146.	Detect Magic	You can see or hear nearby magical auras.
151.	Disassemble	Any of your body parts may be detached and reattached at will without causing pain or damage. You can still control them.
152.	Disguise	You alter the appearance of one character at will as long as they remain humanoid. Attempts to duplicate other characters will seem uncanny.
153.	Displace	An object appears to be up to 15 feet from its actual position.
154.	Earthquake	The ground begins shaking violently around you. Structures may be damaged or collapse.
155.	Elasticity	Your body can stretch up to 15 feet.
156.	Elemental Wall	A straight wall of fire or ice up to 50 feet long and 10 feet high rises from the ground.
161.	Fear	The target becomes terrified of a specific type of thing or person of your choice.
162.	Filch	A small visible item teleports to your hands.
163.	Flare	A bright ball of energy fires a trail of light into the sky, revealing your location.
164.	Fog Cloud	A dense fog spreads out from you.
165.	Frenzy	A nearby creature erupts in a rage of violence.
166.	Gate	A portal to a random plane opens.

44+	A portal to a dimension without flesh or hope opens and consumes you. It's time to roll a new character. Every nearby character adds two Corruption and makes a roll on the Corruptions table.

Aspects

Roll d12 on the corresponding Aspect table to determine the mutation of the corrupting Aspect.

Transformation

Note that upon gaining a fifth Aspect of any one type, your character wholly succumbs to the corruption of that Aspect and transforms into an abomination controlled by the GM. It's time to roll a new character.

The fifth Aspect forever transforms the character as follows.

- Demon Aspect: The character gains mastery over souls, seeking to ensorcel and enthrall the region's leaders and beyond.
- Old Ones Aspect: The character crystallizes into an obsidian pillar of hideous architecture, corrupting the landscape.
- Serpent Aspect: The character transforms fully into a slithering horror, vowing enmity to all who once trusted you.
